Performance Highlights

CASC offers prosecutors cost-effective opportunities to meet Virginia's professional requirements regarding continuing legal education while improving prosecution skills and criminal law knowledge. In FY2012, CASC presented 22 programs. Attendance for 3 annual statewide prosecutor programs exceeded 1000. More than 670 prosecutors and other government attorneys attended the Spring Institute. CASC conducts a week-long

Trial Advocacy program for prosecutors and a variety of specialty and regional programs for teams of prosecutors and law enforcement officers, including Advanced DUI Prosecution (2locations), DUI-D (Drug) Prosecution (4 locations), an Insurance Fraud program, the "Top Gun" drug prosecution course, the "Trauma to Trial" sexual assault investigation and prosecution course, and a Child Fatalities investigation and prosecution course. CASC partnered with other public safety agencies and the Office of the Attorney General to present gang training for law enforcement officers and prosecutors.

CASC closely monitors the quality of the programs from student evaluations. In FY2012, 100 percent of attendee evaluations rated CASC programs as "Excellent" or "Good."

Staffing

Authorized Maximum Employment Level (MEL)	0

Key Risk Factors

The Commonwealth's Attorneys' Services Council currently manages its core responsibilities with a small workforce – 7 staff members- and a modest budget. Four of six CASC staff will be eligible to retire with unreduced benefits within five years. Maintaining CASC services at even its current level requires registration fees for major programs, grant funding, volunteer program faculty drawn from among Commonwealth's Attorneys and public safety agencies, and a highly efficient and well-motivated staff. Alternative (grant) funding resources and partnering opportunities have proved valuable to CASC, but do not offer a stable and predictable foundation for planning training and related services. Well-planned training programs require substantial lead time in preparation and as much as two years advance commitment to a meeting location.

The Virginia Commonwealth's Attorneys' Information System (VCAIS) administered by CASC is now in its 15th year of use and has been installed in approximately 60 local Commonwealth's Attorneys offices. As of now, VCAIS remains a stable and reliable case management system, but its continued viability cannot be guaranteed and it currently is supported by one CASC computer systems engineer. The agency is preparing for the need to transition offices to different case management solutions.

Management Discussion

General Information About Ongoing Status of Agency

CASC focuses on its training activities. Prosecutors need targeted training to improve their trial skills and knowledge of the criminal law. There are few opportunities for Virginia prosecutors to obtain this training from other sources and CASC intends to continue to be the resource of choice for all of Virginia's prosecutors. Maintaining core services of the agency - professional training and information support services – within limited budgetary resources will continue as CASC's priority.

Information Technology

CASC continues to support the VCAIS case management system but has begun to plan for the next solution for local prosecutors' case management needs by investigating commercially available products that local offices may choose as a replacement.

Estimate of Technology Funding Needs

Workforce Development

CASC has benefitted from a stable workforce but, within 5 years, more than half of the CASC staff will be eligible for retirement. Because of the agency's small size, most CASC staff members already are cross trained on a variety of functions and the agency is able to continue operations while new personnel are trained.

Physical Plant

CASC offices are located in the William & Mary Law School in Williamsburg.

Financial Overview

The Commonwealth's Attorneys' Services Council receives general fund appropriations from the General Assembly and federal grant funds. Grants are not a predictable source of funding that can be projected reliably because they are dependent upon available funds and must be applied for annually. During FY2012, CASC was awarded more than $265,000 (excluding state match) in grant funds for projects including Violence Against Women resource prosecutor, Trauma to Trial, Red Flag, Trial Advocacy, DUI, and Traffic Safety resource prosecutor. These funds may cover several fiscal years.
